

ERI
 500 LAFAYETTE
 BLVD
 FREDERICKSBURG
 VA 22405
 ERI-VA.COM
 SUGGESTIONS?

Gladys H. Oberle News

Volume I Issue 2

September 21, 2007

PUT IN YOUR TWO CENTS!

We received a few great entries for the Name Contest! We appreciate everyone who took some time to send in a name idea. Thanks guys! Now we need help choosing a winner! Below are the choices for a name. Please check which one you like and return this paper to, Mary, Or Josh, John. Let your voice be heard!

Inside This Issue:

- | | | | |
|-----------------------|-----|------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------|
| Put In Your Two Cents | 1 | <input type="checkbox"/> Teen Zine | <input type="checkbox"/> Student's Star Weekly |
| Can You Crank That! | 1 | <input type="checkbox"/> Oberle Observer | <input type="checkbox"/> Glad-O-Press |
| Comic Relief | 1-2 | <input type="checkbox"/> Oberle Report | <input type="checkbox"/> Teen Talk |
| Can You Hear Me NOW? | 2 | <input type="checkbox"/> Hot Flash News | <input type="checkbox"/> Teenage Press |

Recycling For The Future 2

Reward Day At Carls 2

CAN YOU CRANK THAT! By Carolina C.

Soulja Boy is finally coming out with his CD on October 2, 2007. He also has a new video that can be viewed on YouTube.com and his official website, souljaboytellem.com. At the website you can buy Soulja Boy's official shades and shirt. There's also a place where you can join the club and trust me it's way better than Myspace. You can also check out his fans doing the Soulja Boy dance. If you want to learn how to the dance, you can go on You Tube and watch him instruct it to you. He also has a section where you can go and submit your own videos. He will put them on his webpage so everyone can view them.

October 4th is the day Interim reports go out! Keep up your grades!

October 7th is Wings Wheels and Ducks at Stafford Airport. Remember to sign up if you want to volunteer. Mary has the sign up sheet.

Comic Relief:

By Mary Baldwin

I know way too many people who, when confronted with the subject of reading, simply roll their eyes. Why in the world would they WANT to read? Books are boring. Right? Wrong. The problem today, is that most people just don't know what kind of books to read. Finding a good book is like finding a good restaurant. Just because you go to a steakhouse and the food is terrible, it doesn't mean you're never going to eat again. You just need to find a better place to go. It's the same way with books. Just because you've read a few boring books in school doesn't mean every book out there is some terrible thing that's going to suck all the joy from your brain.

Can You Hear Me NOW!?

Cell phones! Cell phones! Cell phones! That's all I ever hear about; what kind you want or what's new in stores. Its crazy how one little thing that came out in the 80's was so simple then, but it's so high tech now. It's amazing what a cell phone has now a day. MP3 players, cameras, all sorts of things, the list can go on and on. Don't get me wrong, I'm addicted to the texting, downloading, taking pictures, and everything too, but I still think it's getting to be a bit too much. It's getting so bad that I see little kids with cell phones Then you got adults not setting a good example when they're yapping on there ear piece. I find it hard when I'm trying to take an order from a

Recycling For The Future

By Mary Baldwin

You may have noticed the recycling boxes stationed around the school. The Learn and Serve class took a while to get those boxes, put them together, and make signs for them. So far, the class has visited the recycling center and Habitat for Humanity twice since the start of school. They've been doing very well, and have helped Habitat for Humanity and our environment in general quite a lot with their hard work. So remember people, plastics in the plastic boxes, and cans in the can boxes. By taking just a few seconds out of your day to throw them in the boxes instead of in the trash, you're doing a great thing for the planet we all share. And by remembering to put the proper materials in the right boxes, you're making a dirty job a little easier. The Learn and Serve kids will thank you for it later.

Reward Day at Carl's

Our last reward day was a quick one, but everyone involved had a good time. Spirits were up as we drove to Carls. There was nobody in line, so we were able to get our ice-cream right away. After a few slurps of our shakes, and a couple photo-ops, we climbed back into the van and headed back to school. It was a quick respite, but one that everyone involved really appreciated. Who knows what our next reward day will hold? I think everyone should do their best, so that next time, they'll be part of the fun. It beats class work, doesn't it?

customer who's blabbering on there cell phone. They started a problem in the community, Not only are they annoying, they're rude and out right not safe. We need to be more cautious when using our cell phones.

Here are some suggestions on how you can be safe.

- 1- Be considerate and end your conversations before going into a restaurant.
- 2- Don't answer your phone while driving.
- 3- Put your phone on vibrate so you don't disrupt

Continued from page 1 Comic Relief

.So, in my quest for literacy, I'd like to introduce you to my favorite kinds of books; Comics. When it comes to those, there is usually a comic for any type of person. I myself happen to have a perchance for mangas (Japanese comics). After all, who doesn't like a book filled with fighting, gore, and shameless sight gags? So my friends, I have compiled a list of some of my favorite comics, which range from the serious to the ridiculous. Each one is worth a good long look, so check it out.

-My first pick is a comic called 'Naruto'. I'm sure some of you have heard of it. If you haven't, please come out from under your rock. Your family probably misses you. Anyway, Naruto stars a loudmouthed ninja who always manages to screw things up. Oh, and did I mention he's inhabited by a demon spirit? Still, the action in this book is amazing, and when you couple that with the crude, often outlandish humor, you've got an interesting read.

-My second pick is Stephen Kings's The Dark Tower: Gunslinger Born. This comic is anything but for kids. It's based on a series by the famous Horror Novelist, Stephen King. The artwork in this particular series is cutting and intense. The artwork matches the story, which is epic in and of itself. The story is about an old-west styled Gunslinger, named Roland, and his quest for the fabled Dark Tower. He resides in a world of old technology and deadly magic, which at times resembles our own. In The Dark Tower: Gunslinger born, we get a look into Roland's origins and past. It's a thrilling story, full of adventure, good old fashioned gun fights, and destructive evils. This particular series is NOT to be missed.

-My final pick is one for the ladies. This series is called Vampire Knight. The story is set at Cross Academy. The school is attended by two different groups of students. The Day Class and the Night Class. The only time they cross paths is when the day class goes off to their dorms, and the Night class heads to their studies. It's at that time that Yuki and Zero (the main characters in this particular tale) are most busy. They're guardians, and their main job is to protect the Day class from the Night class's dirty little secret. The students in the night class are all vampires of course. This story is an interesting weave of romance and vampiric action. Try it out. You might just get hooked.